Teaching Approaches and Strategies

“Teaching Approaches and Strategies” form the core foundation for beginning teaching as a profession. Teaching approaches provide a broad philosophical direction, while teaching strategies translate these approaches into practical classroom actions. This book has been thoughtfully prepared to meet the academic and professional needs of students enrolled in B.Ed. and M.Ed. programmes, as well as those pursuing undergraduate and postgraduate courses in the department of education. The academic interests of Dr. Namita Haloi lie in the fields of teaching approaches, instructional strategies, and classroom practises. The present book represents her long-term experience, insights, and dedication to improving the professional preparation of teachers.

Dr. Namita Haloi is a teacher educator who has been involved in the B.Ed. programme for over twenty years. In 2000, she started teaching at Nirmal Haloi College in Bajali District (Assam) and then moved to Rangia Teacher Training College in Kamrup District (Assam) to become an Assistant Professor in the Department of Education. From 2019 onwards, she has been the vice-principal of Rangia Teacher Training College.

Dr. Namita Haloi completed both her undergraduate and post-graduate studies at Cotton College in Guwahati and earned a Ph.D. from Gauhati University. She was one of the two authors of the reference books on Continuing Education and Distance Education, followed by Educational Statistics and Practical and both of them were designed for undergraduate students. In addition, she served as the chief editor of three volumes of EDUSTAR, an annual peer-reviewed edited book that contains multidisciplinary research papers and articles. As a dissertation and project guide, she is associated with Indira Gandhi National Open University (IGNOU). In multiple journals, including Scopus Index journal, her research papers have been published.
